

Spooky Season Photo Challenge

A jack-o'-lantern glowing at night

A foggy morning walk

Crunchy leaves underfoot

A full moon rising

A black cat sighting

A candlelit dinner

A haunted house (real or staged)

A cemetery in golden hour

A seasonal drink in a cozy setting

A spiderweb catching the light

A pumpkin patch

A vintage or spooky thrift store find

A street decorated for Halloween

Your favorite scary book and a blanket

An owl perched in a tree at dusk

A grave with an unusual epitaph

A broom, real or decorative

A candy wrapper from your Halloween stash

Something spooky in your neighborhood

A doorway with autumn décor

A glowing lantern

A foggy window

A crow, raven, or other ominous bird

A mirror selfie in eerie lighting

A handwritten creepy note

A Victorian-style headstone

An abandoned building with autumn leaves creeping in

A piece of spooky jewelry or fall fashion

A movie night setup with a horror film

Your favorite fall candle

A foggy forest path that disappears into the distance

A roadside Halloween attraction

A tree that looks haunted

Something that looks cursed at a thrift store

A scarecrow

A weathered sign with spooky vibes (like “No Trespassing,” “Cemetery Entrance,” etc.)

An old key or lock that looks mysterious

Something broken that looks eerie (window, doll, chair, etc.)

A “thin places” landscape—somewhere between worlds (misty shoreline, twilight forest, mountain overlook, windswept field, or other liminal place that feels otherworldly)

A place that just feels haunted
